Accounting For Trades People

Being in the trades or building industry you need an accountant who understands your business.

Here at More Than Numbers, we appreciate the unique nature of the trade including the importance of cash flow, quotes, invoicing, job costing and scheduling, progress payments, retention and variations, tracking project profits and paying sub-contractors. This is in addition to the usual small business compliance issues of GST, BAS, PAYG and Superannuation.

The long hours and physical demands associated with the trades often means accounting and taxation issues don't receive the attention they deserve. While GST, BAS and tax payments often represent some of the largest financial obligations for a business, most tradespeople fail to manage their tax appropriately. As a result we find many tradespeople pay too much tax, miss legislative obligations and expose themselves to substantial fines or interest penalties. Failing to adequately prepare for tax obligations can also play havoc with your business cash flow that is so important in the trades.

Software selection seems to be another major hurdle for tradespeople. Too often we find plumbers, carpenters and electricians using accounting software beyond their business needs and level of accounting skill. This usually leads to considerable frustration and records that amount to nothing more than a 'computerised shoebox'.

With so many software packages on the market it is easy to become confused and make the wrong decision. They range in functionality and sophistication with a price tag to match and our first step with new clients in the trades is to review their business needs and level of accounting skill.

If you don't understand double entry accounting including debits, credits and journal entries then you'll probably struggle to cope with higher end programs without undergoing extensive training. You'll find we support a range of different software options but we do have a preference for cloud based solutions like MYOB online or Xero because of their flexibility and the fact that you can access your financial data via the internet and invite your accountant or bookkeeper to view your accounts at the same time. You will be able to generate tax invoices, monitor debtors and produce monthly statements and budgets.

We are not your average accounting firm that just keeps the 'score'.

Our mission is to help you grow your business and with over 20 years experience with clients in the trades you can benefit from our experience. To support this claim, visit the 'client services directory' on the home page of our website where we invite our database of clients to use the services of our business clients including various tradespeople.
